

1. In the first part, the author mentions that the current system is not flexible enough. This is a problem because it is difficult to adapt to changing requirements. To solve this, the author suggests a more modular architecture. This means breaking down the system into smaller, reusable components that can be easily combined and modified.

!!!

( )

( )

( )

-
-
-